The school actively supports and encourages each individual student to develop their talents and realise their fullest potential in both academic and non-academic fields. The school embraces, accepts, and promotes tolerance of individual differences and treating everyone with equal respect across the school and wider community.

Legislative Context

The Equality Act 2010 replaces previous anti-discrimination laws with one single act. The public sector Equality Duty came into force on 5 April 2011 and applies to public bodies including schools. It supports good decision making by ensuring that schools consider how different people will be affected by their activities. We must under the general duty of public sector equality law, in the exercise of our functions, have due regard to the need to:

- Eliminate discrimination, harassment, victimisation and any other conduct that is prohibited by or under this act.

- Advance equality of opportunity between persons who share a relevant protected characteristic and persons who do not.
- Foster good relations between persons who share relevant protected characteristics and those who do not.

Protected characteristics cover:

- Age
- Disability
- Gender reassignment
- Marriage and Civil Partnership (but only in respect of eliminating unlawful discrimination)
- Pregnancy and Maternity
- Race -this includes ethnic or national origins, colour or nationality
- Religion or Belief -this includes lack of belief
- Sex

Commitment to Equality & Diversity

Sir William Borlase's Grammar School is committed to ensuring equality for every person in the school community, regardless of age, disability, gender (including transgender), sexual orientation, religion/belief and race. The school acknowledges the value of being multicultural and multilingual. We seek to remove any barriers to access, participation, attainment and achievement. We promote diversity and community cohesion at school, in local, national and global levels. We aim to reflect the diversity of our local community and society and ensure that the education we offer recognises and celebrates different backgrounds, lifestyles, cultures and identities.

Within our happy, supportive community we foster a culture of respect for one another, valuing one another's' differences, enabling everyone to flourish.

Appendix A

The Equality Act 2010

The Equality Act 2010 replaced all existing equality legislation from 1st October 2010. It streamlines all the various legislation into a single requirement.

The Act prohibits schools from discriminating against, harassing or victimising:

- prospective students
- students at the school
- in some circumstances former students
- Schools also have obligations as employers, bodies which carry out public functions and service providers.

The Equality Act 2010 makes it unlawful to discriminate against persons with a 'protected characteristic'. In total there are 9 protected characteristics and they are as follows:

- Age
- Disability
- Gender Reassignment
- Marriage & Civil Partnership
- Pregnancy & Maternity
- Race
- Religion or Belief
- Sex (Gender)
- Sexual Orientation

It is unlawful for an education provider to discriminate on the basis of a protected characteristic without an objective and reasonable justification.

Why we need to address Community Cohesion issues:

Legal Requirements:

The Education and Inspections Act 2006 establishes general duties of governing bodies:

Section 38 states that governing bodies should “promote community cohesion”. Section 154 states the duty to report to OFSTED on the contribution of certain schools to community cohesion.

This seems to be linked to the Government's desire "to promote ethnic, religious, and cultural tolerance and respect between different groups of people living together."

Sir William Borlase's Grammar School promotes Community Cohesion through:

Its School values

Assemblies, PSHE and Lectures

Wider community activities.
