This Week at Borlase...

The meeting of the Local Governing Body on Monday evening, our team of fantastically dedicated volunteers from across the professional spectrum, seems a long time ago and the standout memory of the week for me (and hopefully the 250 or more students who supported the event) was Wednesday's Open Evening. It is a source of immense pride and, I hope, a sign that things are going well at the school that demand in the community led us to put on four, sell-out talks for the first time. The parents and students who visited were glowing in their praise for what they had experienced. The Canteen ran a tasting menu, evidencing the quality of food that the Year 7 students had waxed lyrical about in their talks. There were hockey, netball, rugby and rowing activities in the Sports Hall; there were Rubik's cubes in the Stuart Lever room; there were number-stacking cups in Modern Languages (I was terrible, to my great shame!); there were marshmallow people and bones and entrails in Science. Everywhere was a festival of the different opportunities at Borlase but, as every year, the stars of the show were the student helpers who had kindly given their time to act as helpers, speakers, guides, choristers and marshalls, showing off their school in its best light. Thank you everyone!

Open Evening wouldn't work if it wasn't an authentic representation of what goes on normally at Borlase, albeit in condensed format. If you wander around the site at lunchtime or after school, you get a flavour of just some of the different ways in which students find their tribe. In the Theatre block on Thursday lunchtime, the Jazz Band were busily rehearsing with Mr Davie. Meanwhile a group of students from Year 7 through to Year 13 were playing Warhammer in the Theatre. One of the Year 7s had only started playing since coming to Borlase and was delighted to share his "insane beginner's luck" which had led to a victory in his first battle.

Off-site on Wednesday, Borlase 1st XV were in action (in the new rugby jerseys) at Pangbourne College in the first round of the National Bowl. Although they went down 28-23, it was a valiant performance. With plenty of fixtures coming up over the term ahead, hopefully including a reprise of the "Under the Lights" match against Great Marlow School at Marlow Rugby Club, there are plenty of opportunities for redemption.

Friday presented a remarkable flourish with which to end the week as we were visited by Helen, the great niece of 2nd Lt. Basil Horsfall V.C. who was visiting her daughter Marina from Virginia, USA. Basil Horsfall attended Borlase between 1903 and 1905. He was a distinguished cricketer and came to Marlow having been born in Ceylon where his parents worked on a tea plantation. Basil served in the East Lancs. Regiment and was posthumously awarded the Victoria Cross for his "conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty." Helen and Marina saw the commemorative plaque on West Street and Basil's name on the war memorial in the Chapel where we recreated the service conducted at the Arras Memorial on the Year 9 Battlefields trip. Mr Lofthouse read the letter written by 2nd Lt. Horsfall's commanding officer and the Year 10 choir sang Abide With Me as they had done so beautifully at the Menin Gate in June. A very poignant ceremony to end the week.

Have a lovely weekend
